J P Systems, Inc. Healthcare IT

Interoperability is a Team Sport.
The World Cup is a unique event because it brings together soccer teams from all over the globe. Putting together a winning strategy requires an organized and detailed game plan with in depth technical knowledge. While each team is composed of individuals with differing levels of skill, training, and strategies, putting together a winning team is much more than the mere sum of its individuals. In the 2010 World Cup, Germany beat Argentina 4-0. Germany contained players who functioned interoperably and together created an unbreakable team. Germany clearly overwhelmed Argentina because of great teamwork.   Adequate training and preparation are essential, but the real test arises when the team steps on the field, the referee blows the whistle, and all must come together to accomplish a goal.

Whether it is playing soccer or running a business, a winning team requires individuals who mutually respect each other's abilities, are passionate about achieving the teams' success, and are able to effectively coordinate individual efforts to improve the team's performance. J P Systems Inc. is a Healthcare Information Technology (HIT) company that specializes in Healthcare IT systems and enterprise architecture. The company is dedicated to developing interoperability between healthcare institutions that need to successfully exchange meaningful medical data. Setting terminology standards and increasing interoperability is the goal of the J P Systems team for its clients.

Every team needs a coach; someone who is an expert in the field and can successfully train others. Coaches play a vital role because they set expectations, motivate members, and initiate the team culture. At J P Systems Inc., CEO Jackie Mulrooney proudly assumes this role. With 34 years of IT experience in a field that is continually evolving, she is able to inspire her employees to excel in their areas of expertise and work together towards a common goal.

HIT Interoperability takes world class teamwork!
